

Yukon Land Use Planning Council Annual Report 2002-2003

Mission

The Yukon Land Use Planning Council advocates land use planning as a comprehensive means of addressing cultural, social, economic and environmental sustainability. The YLUPC promotes an open, fair and public process that involves all Yukoners, as set out in the Yukon First Nation Final Agreements.

Message from the Council

The Council has had another year of progress with respect to the implementation of Chapter 11 of the UFA and the First Nation Final Agreements in the territory. Activity took place in 5 of the 8 planning regions in the territory.

The Council is particularly pleased to see the Teslin Regional Planning Commission (TRPC) complete its Precise Terms of Reference and begin the detailed work associated with the regional planning process for the Teslin Planning Region. The Council also worked with Carcross Tagish First Nation, the Teslin Tlingit Council and Government to begin drafting a General Terms of Reference for the Dakh Ka Planning Commission, This work anticipates the settlement of a land claim settlement with the Carcross Tagish First Nation.

The Parties to the establishment of the Peel Watershed Planning Commission made great strides towards the creation of a commission in the Peel Watershed Planning Region and the Council looks forward to the creation of this commission in the coming year. In the Northern Tutchone Planning Region, the Northern Tutchone Council focused much of its attention to the creation of a commission for that region and presented a draft Northern Tutchone Regional Land Use Planning Agreement for consideration by Government.

The only disappointment in the year was the delay of appointments to the North Yukon Planning Commission as a territorial election and the implementation of the Devolution Transfer Agreement meant a slower than expected appointment process. However, with the assistance of existing members, work was completed on a start-up and orientation strategy for the new commission. The Council also worked with the Parties to delineate their roles and responsibilities in the planning process.

The Council remains very optimistic about the future, for never before has there been such a level of activity taken place with respect to regional planning in the Yukon. The Council looks forward to even higher levels of activity and is ready to accept the challenges this period of growth will bring.

Sincerely,

Lesley Cabott,
Chair

The Council reviewed and recommended the 2002-2003 mid-year budget and workplan submission of the Teslin Regional Planning Commission (TRPC) and the Teslin Regional Planning Commission's proposed 2003-2004 annual budget. The Council developed, in correspondence with the existing North Yukon Planning Commission members, both the mid-year amended budget for the North Yukon Planning Commission and 2003-2004 annual budget and workplan. The Council proposed these budgets, and its own workplan and budget to Government and administered the funds received.

In addition, Canada, with assistance from the Council, developed a document that summarized the annual financial cycle for both YLUPC and planning commissions. ## Assessment of Achievements

The Council continues to facilitate the implementation of Chapter 11 and bring regional planning to the Yukon. In 2002-2003 the focus of the Council's work shifted from primarily dealing with the process of establishing planning commission to issues associated with the production of land use plans. This shift is an indication of the consistent progress that is now being made with respect to completing the vision of the Umbrella Final Agreement of a land use plan in every region in the Yukon.

The Council is particularly pleased with the development of the Common Land Use Planning Process and the development and implementation of the Peel Action Plan. Both these products represent process models that will assist in solving future challenges faced by the Council, planning commissions and the Parties to the land claim agreement. The Council looks forward to developing closer relationships with all Yukon First Nations, planning commissions and the newly empowered Yukon Government.
